Example of how to include your hobbies in your personal statement

“ Away from my studies, I am an enthusiastic (if not particularly skilled) footballer. Week in, week out, you'll find me playing for the team I joined eight years ago. We show grit, commitment, and great teamwork in the face of stronger opposition and miserable weather. Our effective communication and team spirit help to make up for our lack of pace. These qualities served me well on my recent Duke of Edinburgh's Award expedition where I also demonstrated my self-reliance by planning and completing a testing journey in the North York Moors. I enjoy being physically and mentally challenged and take pleasure in the contrast with my academic life at sixth form. I hope that these skills and qualities will come in useful at university and in my future career. I know that my academic studies will be demanding, so I intend to join a football team while I am at university to keep me physically fit and mentally well, as well as extending my friendship group.”
